THE MILLION BARRIER FALLS

As recently as two years ago, not even the wildest optimist dared to dream a minor-league city could draw a million fans in a single season, especially a 136-game season.

But A. Ray Smith not only dreamed of the possibility but openly predicted it after his first season of ownership in Louisville in 1982 produced a draw of 868,418, a new minor-league record by nearly 200,000. And last season the Louisville Redbirds made their owner's boast look good by cracking the "impossible" one-million barrier with an incredible draw of 1,052,498.

And who's to say the Redbirds won't beat that mark in 1984?

Led by Louisville's blockbuster total, the American Association surpassed its league record by attracting an eight-team total of 2,591,816, nearly 200,000 more than the old mark set in 1982.

Louisville wasn't the only club to set a record for its city. The Iowa Cubs broke the Des Moines record by pulling 255,830.

The Denver Bears, who had set a minor-league one-game attendance mark for three straight seasons on Fireworks Night, couldn't match its 1982 mark of 65,666. But its July 2 crowd of 69,781 was still the second largest ever for a minor league baseball game.

And the Bears wound up the big winners on the playing field by sweeping Louisville in four games in the league championships series. The Association went back to a four-team playoff format used in 1981. Louisville, the regular-season percentage leader and Eastern Division champ, downed Oklahoma City's Western Division runnerup in one semifinal while the Bears whipped Evansville's Eastern runnerup.

The parent Chicago White Sox stripped Denver of six top players plus Manager Jim Mahoney after the league playoffs and the Association representative had little chance in the first Triple A World Series at Louisville, which was won by Tidewater of the International League.

It was a lean year for records on the playing field. Dan Rohn of Iowa played 54 consecutive errorless games at second base for a record and Louisville established a record by compiling 28 assists in a 10-inning game.

A 1984 change in working agreements finds Indianapolis working with Montreal, and Wichita with Cincinnati. The others remain unchanged.

THOMAS J. HICKEY

League founder, president 1902-03, 1917-35

The American Association, one of the oldest and most respected baseball leagues, operated without interruption for 61 seasons from 1902-1962. It was founded in 1901 with the unofficial cooperation of the United States government. Thomas J. Hickey, who was to serve as league president for 21 years, wrote to postmasters in eight cities requesting their opinion on the prospects for organizing a new league incorporating their cities. He received favorable responses from all eight and the foundation for the new circuit was laid.

How well Mr. Hickey built is attested by the fact that the Association's original lineup remained constant for 50 years. Charter members were Minneapolis, St. Paul, Louisville, Indianapolis, Kansas City, Milwaukee, Toledo and Columbus.

From 1902, the league's first season, until 1952, the Association membership remained the same except in 1914 and 1915 when the Toledo club operated in Cleveland. The first break came in 1952 when the Toledo franchise was moved to Charleston June 23d. When Milwaukee entered the National League in 1953, the franchise was transferred to Toledo for the 1953 season.

The Kansas City franchise was moved to Denver, November 29, 1954, when the Blues entered the American League; the trend westward continued as the Columbus franchise was placed in Omaha December 1, 1954, and Wichita replaced Toledo for the 1956 season.

Texas joined the Association in 1959 when the league made the historic move of admitting Fort Worth, Dallas and Houston. The new members boosted the circuit to ten teams and it was split into Eastern and Western divisions. The Louisville franchise was returned to the league February 6, 1959, but the Colonels remained in the league when the Wichita franchise was moved to the Kentucky city.

The franchises of Omaha, Fort Worth and Charleston were surrendered December 31, 1959, after a new franchise had been issued to Charleston November 30, 1959.

Oklahoma City became the 10th city in the Association family when Houston transferred its franchise to the Oklahoma capital after the 1961 season.

The league suspended play after the 1962 season as some of its cities went to the Pacific Coast League, some to the International and some dropped out of baseball. It was reactivated in 1969 with six clubs — Denver, Omaha, Iowa, Indianapolis, Oklahoma City and Tulsa. Addition of Evansville and Wichita in 1970 restored the league to eight-club membership for the first time since 1950.

JOE RYAN

American Association President

Joe Ryan is in his 13th year as president of the 77-year-old American Association. Only the league's founder and first president, Thomas J. Hickey, served longer in the presidential role.

It's a fact of which Ryan is proud. "I consider the American Association presidency to be a real high honor in this game," he said.

Ryan once helped produce a crowd of 56,000 at Miami, a minor league single-game attendance record that stood for 24 years until Denver set a new record for three straight years on Fireworks Night. In years past Ryan considered his Miami crowd promotion and the 1962 International League pennant and Junior World Series conquest of his Atlanta Crackers as his team greatest achievements in baseball.

But he says he now derives greater pleasure from the good things that happen to clubs in the league he heads.

"Nothing makes me feel better than for something good to happen to someone in our league," he said. "Last year we achieved heights we never thought we could scale. It feels great. Who would have thought a few years ago that one city would draw a million and the league more than two and a half million?"

Ryan's style is one of dedication and hard work. He's no spell-binder and doesn't try to be. But he knows everybody in baseball and his dogged sincerity and steady effort have served the league well.

Ryan is the latest of many American Association presidents plucked from within the league. Others include George Trautman, Roy Hamey, Frank Lane, Bruce Dudley, Ed Doherty and Jim Burris.

Ryan has been general manager in three Triple A Leagues—in the International League at Miami, San Juan, Charleston and Atlanta; the Pacific Coast League at Oklahoma City; and the American Association at both Oklahoma City and Wichita.

He has been associated with baseball most of his life. His father, Ray Ryan, was a catcher for the Chicago White Sox and also served as manager, scout, and in the promotional department of the National Association, and was president of three minor leagues at one time.

Joe was president of a Class B League early in his career. He served as secretary and statistician of the leagues his father headed.

Ryan has worked for the Detroit Tigers and Cincinnati Reds and has operated minor league clubs in the following organizations: Philadelphia Phillies, Baltimore Orioles, St. Louis Cardinals, Houston Astros and Cleveland Indians.

He was director of the Houston Astros' training complex at Cocoa, Fla., while serving as Houston's business representative in Florida.

He was one of the leaders in the revival of the American Association in 1969 and served as its first vice president.

Ryan recently served as vice president of the National Association of Professional Baseball leagues (NAPBL) and as chairman of the NAPBL's executive committee. The NAPBL is the governing body of organized baseball's minor-league system. Ryan has served two three-year terms on the executive committee. He presently is a member of the National Association's umpire committee. Last year the Joe Ryan Award to the most improved young umpire was instituted.

MOST SUCCESSFUL MANAGERS

Who was the most successful manager in American Association history? The answer depends on which era you're talking about. In the league's first 45 years when managers stayed in the circuit year after year, Mike Kelley won five pennants, Bill Clymer, Billy Meyer and Joe Cantillon four each, and Owen J. (Dome) Bush three.

In the last three decades featured by shorter tenures and many promotions to the major leagues, Vern Rapp is the only manager to compile the best won-lost percentage as many as three times.

SPORTING NEWS AWARDS

The tradition that the American Association is a spawning ground for the major leagues, both in the front office and on the field, is founded in fact. Association figures have captured 39 awards in the annual poll conducted by The Sporting News to select outstanding players, managers and executives in the minor leagues. Since the awards were established in 1948, the Association has been singled out in 29 of the polls and on seven occasions has captured two of the three awards. In 1954 Indianapolis made a historic sweep by winning all three awards.

Great Moments in American Association History

1902

On the final day of the season Indianapolis led Louisville by two games with three left to play, the teams agreed to play three games on the final day Indianapolis won all three of its games at St. Paul and completed them in the remarkable total playing time of three hours and 12 minutes. Louisville won a 1 three at Minneapolis, taking the first one on a forfeit when the Millers were late for the game. Pat Flaherty pitched both of the winning Colonel games.

1908

The incomparable Rube Marquard of Indianapolis pitched four shutouts in six consecutive games. He averaged less than three hits per game as he tossed three two hitters, two three hitters and a four-hitter. In the six games he allowed only two runs while striking out 40 batters. In 1908 Marquard had one no-hitter, two one hitters, three two hitters, six three-hitters and six four-hitters.

1909

Cy Young of Minneapolis shut out Milwaukee in a doubleheader July 13th, yielding four hits in the opener and one in the nightcap. He pitched 10 consecutive hitless innings and won one game with homer.

1912

In these days when baseballs have a remarkable propensity for flying out of parks, cost-conscious executives remember with nostalgia a game April 11, 1912, in which Kansas City and Columbus played an entire game with ONE BALL.

1913

Jim Baskette of Toledo pitched a no-hit game against Minneapolis July 13th but lost 1-0 on a walk, sacrifice, stolen base and sacrifice fly.

Indianapolis and Minneapolis played 37 innings to decide one game. Started on April 25th, the game ended in a 1-1 tie when rain halted play in the sixth inning. The second attempt was stopped by darkness after nine innings, June 15th, with the score tied 6-6. The third try on August 7th went 13 innings before darkness terminated play with a 2-2 tie. Minneapolis finally ended the marathon by winning 11-1, August 8.

1915

Dave Danforth of Louisville struck out 59 batters in four consecutive games.

1924

Charley Dressen of St. Paul reached first base 14 times in succession from July 1st through July 4th. In the string he had 11 successive hits, a walk, an error and another hit.

1932

Bryan Harries and Russell Van Atta of St. Paul held Kansas City hitless for 16 $\frac{2}{3}$  innings May 18-19. Harries hurled a no-hitter on the 18th and Van Atta blanked the Blues for seven and two-thirds on the 19th.

Joe Mowry of Minneapolis equalled Dressen's 1924 feat of reaching base 14 times in succession April 25th through the 28th. His string included 12 hits (not consecutively), an error and a walk.

1935

Phil Todt of St. Paul made six hits in six at bat August 25th but failed to gain credit for tying a record when the game went into extra innings.

1937

Yank Terry of Louisville pitched a seven inning no-hitter.

Great Moments in American Association History — Continued

1943

Milwaukee shut out Minneapolis in four consecutive games

1944

Walter Brown of Toledo pitched a seven inning no-hitter

1947

Steve Gerkin of Minneapolis appeared in 81 games, two as a starter and 79 as a reliever. He pitched in three additional games which were expunged from the record by rain. He also worked in four Playoff games against Louisville to bring his 1947 total to a remarkable 90 games.

1948

Catcher Roy Campanella of St. Paul became the first Negro to play in the Association when he appeared in a May 22nd game.

Lee 'Huck' Ross of Toledo pitched a seven-inning no-hitter against Minneapolis August 1st.

1949

Walter Nothe of Toledo pitched an eight-inning no-hitter against Minneapolis. Ellis "Cotton" Deal pitched 20 innings for Columbus in beating Louisville 4-3. St. Paul opened the season with 12 straight victories and won 18 of its first 20 games.

Lefthander Maury McDermott struck out 20 St. Paul batsmen May 24th fanning the side in the third, fifth, sixth, eighth and ninth innings. He struck out 14 men in the last five innings; in the ninth he threw nine straight strikes, fanning Buddy Hicks and Grady Wilson on six pitches before retiring Jim Pendleton after a strike, two fouls, a ball and a swinging strike. McDermott gave up three hits in winning 3-0. Pinch-hitter Ferrell Anderson, who had a single, was the only Saint to escape McDermott's strikeout magic. In 1949 McDermott struck out 99 men in 66 innings and 103 in 67½.

Righthander Marlin Stuart of Toledo pitched the second perfect game in Association annals June 25th with a 1-0 conquest of Indianapolis at Swayne Field.

Minneapolis second baseman Dave Williams hit two homers in the same inning on two pitches against Kansas City June 26th. He drove the first pitch out of the park as the leadoff batter and duplicated the feat as the Millers batted around in the inning.

Minneapolis shortstop Bill Jennings had no fielding chances in an entire game July 26th. Kirby Higby pitched a seven-inning no-hitter against Columbus July 27th.

1951

Minneapolis shortstop Dave Williams hit four consecutive home runs over a two-game span June 26-27. Bert Thiel of Milwaukee pitched a seven-inning no-hitter. Louisville won 14 straight games though the end of the season. Toledo checked Minneapolis without a hit in 17 straight innings August 4th.

Milwaukee hit nine home runs against Minneapolis May 28th. The first Association hit by Milwaukee's Eddie Mathews was a grand slam home run.

1952

Ernie Nevel of Kansas City defeated Minneapolis 3-0 in a seven-inning no-hitter. Kansas City broke three records and tied another with a spectacular hitting outburst June 20th against St. Paul at St. Paul. The Blues belted ten home runs for 53 total bases and six of the round trippers came in one inning. Catcher Roy Partee hit two of the homers in one inning.

1971

Fred Norman of Tulsa pitched a no-hitter against Indianapolis in winning 4-0 on June 5 and Rich Hand of Wichita came within one walk of a perfect game in winning a 3-0 no-hitter against Tulsa on August 19. They were the first nine-inning no-hitters in the league since 1959. Denver had the rare distinction of not being out of first place a single day of the season in winning the Western Division before beating Indianapolis in the championship series.

1972

Two nine-inning no-hitters and a perfect seven-inning game featured 1972 pitching performances. Evansville's Jim Skilton beat Wichita 5-0 on August 3 and Omaha's Tom Murphy blanked Indianapolis on August 25 in the nine-inning no-hitters. Oklahoma City's Oscar Zamora hurled the perfect seven-inning game in beating Denver 6-0 on September 2 as only four balls were hit to the outfield.

1974

The Evansville Triplets zeroed in on one of the league's most formidable records on May 13 at Wichita. The Triplets' 21 hits went for 49 total bases but this was four TB short of the epic 53 registered by the Kansas City Blues in 1951. The Evansville bag included six home runs, three of them by shortstop Tom Veryzer.

1975

For offensive production by both clubs in consecutive games, how about these July 17-18 facts by Evansville and Tulsa. On July 17, Evansville slammed 21 hits for 41 total bases including four home runs yet lost 15-14. Why? Because Tulsa made its 16 hits for 34 total bases produce 15 runs. Combined two team totals: 75 total bases on 37 hits, 13 doubles, two triples and seven homers. The next night it was Tulsa's turn to lose despite 20 hits and 27 total bases as the Triplets won 7-13 on "only" 18 hits, 26 total bases. The two-game, two-team totals: 58 runs, 75 hits, 128 total bases, 20 doubles, three triples and nine homers in six hours and 47 minutes of baseball. Whew!

1976

Ed Glynn of Evansville, Dave Hasbuck of Omaha, Chris Knapp of Iowa and John Montague of Oklahoma City pitched seven-inning no-hit games. Tulsa had a 14-run inning, hit six home runs and had 42 total bases in a game at Denver.

1977

The Evansville Triplets staged one of the most prolific power displays in American Association history on June 3, making 21 hits go for 49 total bases in a 20-2 rout of New Orleans. The Triplets belted six homers, three by outfielder John Vale, and had four doubles and three triples among 21 hits.

1978

Jack Kueck of Iowa and Silvio Martinez of Springfield pitched nine-inning no-hitters on the same night (May 26). Denver's 48 total bases against Wichita on April 23 were only five short of the league record. Tony DeMatteo did only 5-8, 1-0, had 15 while going 6-for-6 with two homers and three doubles.

1979

Denver left-handed Junior Festerly became the second pitcher in league history to pitch a perfect seven-inning game when he blanked Iowa 10-0 at Des Moines on July 14. The only other no-hitter in 1979 was a nine-inning collaborated effort of four Indianapolis pitchers in a 5-0 win over Evansville on August 29. Paul Muska (1 inning), Dave May (3), Sheldon Burnside (2) and Angel Torres (1).
